Can anyone explain the law regarding Quadbikes?

I can understand that they are very useful in fields, rounding up sheep etc., but increasingly they are now found tearing round the lanes.

Are they insured for road use?

What happens if they hit a pedestrian or cyclist?

Do they have an MOT?

Who checks the function of brakes, lights, horn etc.?

Do they have to have Road Tax?

Do they have to have number plates? Many don't.

Do the drivers have to use seat belts? Many don't.

It seems to me that this is a case of an accident waiting to happen.

A short note from the editor

Due to an error in the printing of the last issue, many of you ended up with a blank sheet on page 20 where Nature Notes #88 should have been and were also missing a poem. We apologise for this and have re-printed the missing material in this issue.
